Write your own Prayer

There are many different types of prayer within Judaism. There are prayers which give thanks for something, prayers which praise God, and prayers which ask for something. In the space provided compose your own prayer using one of these types of prayers. Take some time to be thoughtful and consider the type of prayer you will write. Think about the words and language you will use. Why might thinking about language and wording be important when writing a prayer?